

Many of the radio stations in my area are owned by ClearChannel Broadcasting. I find myself listening to the radio less and less each month because each station is more repetetive than the last. With their airtime deals and such, I usually can hear the same 10 songs on my way home as I did on my way to work, regardless of the station. Consolidation seems to be working poorly, judging by customer satisfaction.